Evidence for mandatory HRDD legislation

In the past years, several European countries, as well as the EU, have adopted or started to consider legislation that embeds elements of human rights due diligence (HRDD) into law. European institutions, United Nations bodies and other international organisations have also acknowledged the need for binding regulation to promote the implementation of HRDD and to improve access to justice for victims of corporate-related human rights abuses. This type of regulation is also gaining broader support from the business community, which considers it a means to help them implement their responsibility to respect human rights.

This document collects key policy and legal developments in the field of mandatory HRDD or parent company liability that show the emergent trend towards legislation. The paper will be regularly updated.

Index:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Legislative processes at country level</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Policy statements at country level</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>EU legislation</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Support by EU and European institutions</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Nations (UN) bodies and other international organisations</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Support by the business community</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Endnotes</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

* For a collection of worldwide developments, news, academic articles and other resources, visit the collective website www.bhrinlaw.org.
A) Legislative processes at country level:

France: The “Duty of vigilance” law adopted in February 2017 requires large French companies to establish and publish a vigilance plan with measures to adequately identify risks and prevent serious harms to human rights, human health and safety, and to the environment linked to their own activities and to the activities carried out by subsidiaries, subcontractors and suppliers. The law also establishes civil liability for harms resulting from a company’s failure to observe its duty of vigilance.

In its national strategy on deforestation adopted in November 2018, the government committed to support a legislative proposal establishing an EU-wide duty of vigilance.

The Netherlands: The Child Labour Due Diligence Bill, adopted by the Senate in May 2019, creates HRDD requirements for those companies, wherever incorporated, that deliver products and services to the Dutch market two or more times a year. Companies will have to submit a statement to the regulatory authority declaring that they have carried out due diligence to identify risks related to child labour throughout their full supply chain. In case child labour is presumed to take place, the company has to draw up an action plan.

The United Kingdom (UK): The Transparency in Supply Chains clause included in the Modern Slavery Act (2015) requires companies domiciled or conducting business in the UK to disclose the steps undertaken (including due diligence measures) to ensure that slavery or human trafficking is not taking place in their supply chains.

Italy: The Legislative Decree on administrative liability of legal entities (2001) introduces corporate criminal liability for crimes committed in the interest or advantage of the company, including human rights violations. Corporate liability may also accrue for human rights abuses committed by Italian enterprises operating abroad, especially if part of violations occurred in Italy. In order to avoid liability, companies shall demonstrate that they implemented compliance programs. This provision has raised awareness among companies about the idea of preventing human rights offenses, in accordance with HRDD procedures.

Switzerland:

- Responsible business Initiative: the First Chamber of the Parliament approved in June 2018 a legislative proposal that requires large companies to undertake human rights and environmental due diligence according to the UNGPs and the OECD Guidelines. It also establishes civil liability for parent companies for harm caused by their subsidiaries. The bill was approved as a counter-proposal to the citizen Responsible Business Initiative, which proposed changing the Constitution to introduce a duty of care for companies, including HRDD obligations and civil liability. After its rejection by a narrow majority in the Second Chamber of the Parliament (Senate) in March 2019, the counter-proposal was again supported in the Legal Affairs Committee of the First Chamber. The plenary of this chamber will vote on it in June 2019.

- The Federal Act on Private Security Services Provided Abroad (PSSA), in force since 2015, establishes the prohibition of direct and indirect participation in hostilities. Private security companies abroad are required to disclose the nature and place of the activity, the provider, the recipient and the personnel employed.

Germany: A draft law on Human Rights and Environmental Due Diligence by the Ministry of Development Cooperation was leaked in February 2019. The bill would require companies to conduct HRDD. Non-compliance with the law could lead to fines of up to five million Euros, imprisonment and exclusion from public procurement procedures in Germany.

Denmark: Three political parties have put forward a Parliamentary motion requesting the government to develop a legislative proposal on mHRDD and corporate liability, with the support of over 100 civil society organisations, the trade union confederation, the Danish Consumer Council and some businesses.
B) Policy statements at country level:

Germany:
Based on its National Action Plan to implement the UNGPs (2016), the German government announced in its Coalition Agreement that it would consider legislation if less than half of major German companies adopt adequate HRDD processes by 2020.

Luxembourg:
The government’s Coalition Agreement (2018) includes a commitment to explore the possibility of HRDD legislation in Luxembourg and to support binding and effective EU legislation.

Italy:
The National Action Plan (2016) sets the Government’s commitment to evaluate the integration of more human rights offences into law 231/2001 regarding administrative liability of legal entities, as well as to assess and evaluate legislative reforms requiring corporate respect of human rights, including due diligence for companies.

UK:
The Parliament’s joint Committee on Human Rights recommended in March 2017 legislation imposing a duty on all companies to prevent human rights abuses. This duty of care would require implementing HRDD and would enable civil remedies against the parent company when abuses occur.

Sweden:
In the outcome of a study commissioned by the Minister of Trade, the Swedish Agency for Public Management recommended that the government looks into binding human rights due diligence requirements for Swedish companies, as well as address access to remedy obstacles faced by victims of corporate abuse.

Norway:
In 2018, the government mandated an Ethics Committee to explore responsible business and supply chain regulation.

Green Card:
In 2016, members of parliaments in eight EU Member States launched a "Green Card" asking the European Commission to initiate a legislative procedure in order to ensure corporate accountability for human rights abuses. The initiative (promoted by Danielle Auroi, member of the French Parliament, and supported by France, UK, Italy, Estonia, Lithuania, Slovakia, Portugal, and The Netherlands) calls for an EU duty of care legislation that protects individuals and communities whose human rights and local environment are affected by the activities of EU-based companies.

C) EU legislation:

EU Conflict Minerals Regulation (2016): lays down supply chain due diligence obligations for EU importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas.

EU Timber Regulation (2010): requires companies or persons placing timber or timber products on the EU market to conduct due diligence in order to determine the source of the timber and its legality.

Non-Financial Reporting Directive (2014): establishes general disclosure requirements for large and listed companies. Companies are required to report annually on their principal risks regarding, among others, environmental impacts and respect for human rights, as well as on the due diligence policies implemented to address these risks and their outcomes. The disclosure obligation covers information related to the company’s own operations and to its supply chains and business relationships.

D) Support by EU and European institutions:

European Commission (EC): The Action Plan Financing Sustainable Growth (2018) includes, among other measures aimed at improving corporate governance, a commitment to assess by 2019 the possibility of introducing supply chains due diligence requirements for corporate boards. Such mandatory due diligence would not be limited to a particular topic such as conflict minerals or timber. An independent institute has been mandated to conduct a study on regulatory options for due diligence, which is expected to be published in autumn 2019.
Council of the EU: Its Conclusions on Global Value Chains\(^1\) (May 2016) call the EC and EU Member States to enhance the implementation of due diligence in order to achieve a global level playing field. The same year, the Conclusions on Business and Human Rights (June 2016)\(^2\) called on the EC to launch an EU Action Plan on Responsible Business Conduct addressing due diligence and access to remedy, including at EU legislative level, as appropriate. The document endorsed the 2016 Council of Europe Recommendations on Human Rights and Business and called for their implementation. In February 2018, the Council reiterated the EU’s commitment to implement the UNGPs including through initiatives on HRDD and access to remedy, and assessing a possible related EU Action Plan\(^3\).

European Parliament: The institution has stressed the need for binding HRDD regulation at the EU legislative level in a number of occasions.

- In 2019, across-party Working Group on Responsible Business Conduct adopted a Shadow EU Action Plan on Business and Human Rights\(^4\) which called, among other measures, for the adoption of mandatory HRDD legislation and corporate liability.
- A number of EP Reports call for binding legislation: In 2018, the Report on Sustainable Finance called for an EU overarching mandatory due diligence framework including a duty of care based, among others, on the French duty of vigilance law\(^5\). This same year, the Report on indigenous peoples stressed the need to hold European multinational corporations and business enterprises accountable for the human rights violations, including by means of human rights due diligence measures. The 2017 Report on EU Flagship Initiative for the garment sector\(^6\) demanded the Commission to propose binding supply chains due diligence legislation. That same year, the EP Report on Global Value Chains\(^7\) asked the Commission to consider proposals for corporate due diligence, taking into account the French duty of vigilance law, and the Green Card initiative. In 2016, the EP Report on corporate liability for serious human rights abuses in third countries\(^8\) asked for urgent binding and enforceable rules in the field of corporate responsibility and due diligence, related sanctions and monitoring mechanisms.

- A study requested by the Subcommittee of Human Rights studied obstacles faced by victims of corporate human rights abuses in third countries to access justice in 2019. It made several recommendations, including the adoption of mandatory HRDD at the EU level to contribute to address the governance gap and ensure better access to legal remedies for victims\(^9\).

Fundamental Rights Agency (FRA): The Agency published its Opinion on improving access to remedy in the area of business and human rights\(^10\) in April 2017. After revising the key obstacles faced by victims of corporate-related human rights abuses to obtain proper remedy, the document recommended the establishment of due diligence obligations, including for parent companies linked to human rights performance in subsidiaries or supply chains (FRA Opinion 21).

Council of Europe (CoE): The body which monitors the implementation of the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR) has also addressed the issue. In 2016, the CoE’s Committee of Ministers published a “Recommendation on Human Rights and Business”\(^11\) which includes measures to secure victims of business-related human rights abuses access to court and proper remedies, wherever the defendant company is based. It recommended legal measures, including mandatory HRDD, for certain circumstances.

E) United Nations (UN) bodies and other international organisations:

UN High Commissioner for Human Rights: The UN body presented in 2016 its report on the accountability and remedy for victims of business-related human rights abuses project\(^12\). It recommends legal reforms addressing the challenges of global supply chains. Among other measures, this included ensuring that the principles for assessing corporate liability under domestic law regimes are properly aligned with the companies’ responsibility to exercise HRDD. In a more recent report published in 2018\(^13\), the UN body recognized that HRDD legislation can provide companies with legal certainty and a level playing field. It also stated that corporate liability can be an incentive to greater levels of HRDD.

UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (CESCR): The body’s General Comment No. 24 concerning states’ obligations in the context of business activities (2017)\(^14\) affirmed that states have the duty to establish general human rights due diligence obligations for companies, and to remove barriers to access to remedies, including by establishing corporate liability regimes, among others.

UN Committee on the Rights of the Child: The body’s General Comment No. 16 concerning states’ obligations regarding the impact of the business sector in children’s rights (2013) affirmed that, in order to meet their obligation to ensure that business enterprises respect children’s rights, states should require business to undertake due diligence.

UN Working Group on BHR: In its 2018 report to the UN General Assembly, the WG recommended States “the use of legislation to create incentives to exercise due diligence, including through mandatory requirements”. The report welcomed the adoption of the French duty of vigilance law as “a development that other Governments should learn from”.

UN Open-Ended IGWG on Transnational Corporations and Other Business Enterprises with respect to Human Rights: In July 2018 the Chair of the Working Group published the Zero Draft for an International UN Legally Binding Treaty. The document establishes that states shall legislate on the field of mandatory HRDD and ensure corporate liability for human rights violations.

OECD: Its report on the implementation of the Recommendation on Due Diligence Guidance for Responsible Supply Chains of Conflict Minerals (April 2016) recognized that regulatory measures have provided the strongest impetus to promote responsible conduct from business.

F) Support by the business community:

In Finland, companies have joined a campaign calling for mandatory HRDD legislation. The coalition campaign, launched on 24 September 2018, is made up of over 140 companies, civil society and trade unions. Other 20 companies and NGOs have publicly supported the call.

Dutch companies (including multinationals like Nestlé, Heineken or G-Star) have signed an open letter in support of the Dutch Child due diligence Bill (2017).

In a submission to the UK Government concerning the Modern Slavery Act, IKEA declared in 2014 that it would support appropriate due diligence requirements as described in the United Nations Guiding Principles.

The Swiss Association ‘Groupement des Enterprises Multinationales’ (GEM), representing 90 large multinational companies, supports a Swiss legislative proposal establishing mandatory HRDD and corporate liability (2017-8). Additional business people joined forces with legal experts and former MPs in a support committee for this legislative proposal. The committee’s website also features a supportive statement by Prof. John Ruggie.

Senior corporate executives have ranked “make human rights due diligence a legal requirement” in the top 3 out of 10 measures to enable companies to fulfil their responsibility to respect human rights, in a global survey by the Economist.
ENDONTES:

1 Law num. 2017-399 from 27 March 2017 concerning the duty of vigilance of parent companies and ordering companies. See FAQs by ECCJ. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

3 Child Labour Due Diligence Law, currently awaiting Senate approval. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

5 Legislative Decree No. 231/2001 for Administrative Criminal Liability, read overview by Human Rights International Corner. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

6 Read "Another step towards the adoption of a HRDD bill in Switzerland", July 2018, corporatejustice.org. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

7 Responsible Business Initiative, Text and explanations. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

8 Activity Report 2015/2016 on the implementation of the Federal Act on Private Security Services Provided Abroad (1 September 2015 - 31 December 2016). [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

9 Business and Human Rights Resource Centre, German Development Ministry drafts law on mandatory human rights due diligence.

11 Read a translation of the government committment in English and the full Agreement in French in the Luxembourg section of the bhrinlaw.org.

15 Norwegian Ethics Information Committee, see website here.

16 "Members of eight Member States Parliaments support duty of care legislation for EU corporations", 31 May, 2018, corporatejustice.org.

17 Regulation (EU) 2017/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2017 laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

20 Communication from the Commission to the European Parliament, the European Council, the Council, the European Central Bank, the European Economic and Social Committee and The Committee of the Regions: "Action Plan: Financing Sustainable Growth", COM/2018/097 final. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

21 Council Conclusions on the EU and Responsible Global Value Chains (12 May 2016).

22 Council Conclusions on Business and Human Rights (20 June 2016). [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

24 Shadow EU Action Plan on Business and Human Rights, on the website of the WG of RRB, March 2019.

29 EP Report on corporate liability for serious human rights abuses in third countries (2015/2315(INI)).

31 “Improving access to remedy in the area of business and human rights at the EU level”, FRA Opinion - 1/2017, 10 April 2017. [more information at BHRinLaw.org]

36 Committee on the Rights of the Child, General comment No. 16 (2013) on State obligations regarding the impact of the business sector on children’s rights, 17 April 2013, UN Doc. CRC/C/GC/16.

39 OECD, “Report on the implementation of the recommendation on due diligence guidance for responsible supply chains of minerals from conflict-affected and high risk areas” [c/min(2011)12/ final].

40 Companies, Civil Society and Unions call on Finland to adopt mHRDD legislation, 24 September, 2018, ECCJ.

42 IKEA submission to UK government, 24.3.2014

43 Association of Multinational Enterprises (GEM), "The Groupement des Entreprises Multinationales (GEM) welcomes the adoption by the National Council of the counter-project to the initiative for responsible companies. (...) This legislation would benefit the attractiveness of Switzerland as a business location. (...) It now calls on the Council of States to give its assent." Translation of French press release 15.7.18.

44 Committee's website in French and German, John Ruggie's statement in English.